MAD DOGS CAUSE STATE OF TERROR

People Go Armed in Brock's Gap Section—Many Animals Attacked.

Harrisonburg, Va., February 16.—A mad dog is at large in the Singers Gap section this morning and men and boys are out well-armed in pursuit of the rabid animal. The dog strayed from the northern part of the county, the Brock's Gap section, which has been in a state of terror for three weeks.

Two rabid animals got loose three weeks ago, and before they were killed they bit a score of other dogs, hogs, cows and horses. A number of these have in turn gone mad, and the condition of panic and terror is extraordinary.

No man ventures out without a gun or a club, and Custer's Store, in the Gap, presents the appearance of an arsenal every day when the people of the neighborhood gather there and stack their weapons.

It is reported that two persons have been bitten. Two dogs are now at large, and it is feared that many more will be seized with rabies.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Covered with Eruption to Back of Ears So They Hardly Knew What He Looked Like. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In 4 Weeks Face Fine and Clean.

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tried little bits of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched."

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks, the dear child's face was as clean and as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a beautiful hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody. (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 583, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN STOVE HEARING

Argument Will Be Had After Additional Exhibits Have Been Filed.

Taking of testimony on the petition of the railroad companies for a requirement that cast-iron stoves shipped in less than carload lots shall be crated, came to an end yesterday. A large amount of additional detailed information concerning shipments, claims for damage and kindred matters were asked for by the State Corporation Commission, and the attorneys for the railroad companies have had to answer all these additional exhibits have been filed, which will probably not be for two or three weeks.

General cordial invitations marked the close of the proceedings. C. V. Meredith asked the commission to visit the works of the Richmond Stove Company and the Southern Stove Company, of this city, to see how Virginia stoves are made, packed and shipped. Not to be outdone in courtesy, C. E. Northrup, of the Southern Railway, invited the commissioners to "come down and look at the cars in which stoves are handled." To this Lucien H. Cooke, of the Norfolk and Western, added a bid to accompany a shipment of stoves from the starting point to its destination, provided the commission would go at its own risk.

Losses Slight.—E. T. Harrison, treasurer of the Southern Stove Works, presented some figures regarding losses of stoves in transit. For the nine months from January 1 to October 1, 1910, his concern shipped away from Richmond to points in Virginia, of cast-iron stoves, 1,000,000. The cost of crating and packing, exclusive of stoves, was $26,574. The cost of this total which embraces intrastate shipments only, three were claims made for breakage of twenty-four stoves, with a total damage of $15.84. This was intended to show that the loss on Virginia-built stoves is inconsiderable.

F. P. Loth, general manager of the Loth Stove Company, of Waynesboro, Va., was the next and last witness. He estimated that the cost of crating and packing of stoves is about 10 cents. The average size of even would be from 40 to 50 cents. This would not include freight. On cross-examination by Mr. Northrup, Mr. Loth said that the cost of production was ascertained by a system of cost accounting. This is known as a "diffused cost," everything which is an item of expense is taken into account. He admitted that the prices of interstate stoves which are now required to be crated or boxed, he thought hardly enough to cover the additional cost. The idea in this line of testimony was to show that the extra cost would not fall upon the manufacturers.

Mr. Loth told Mr. Meredith, on direct examination, that in handling stoves in the warehouse or on the floor, they were piled on top of each other, and he believed not one in a thousand was broken there. He described the manufacturing process in detail.

BIG CELEBRATION PLANNED.

Literary Societies at Wake Forest to Hold Anniversary Exercises To-Day. Wake Forest, N. C., February 16.—The seventy-sixth anniversary of the Euellian and Philomathean Literary Societies will be held to-morrow. The social side of the exercises began last night, for at the basketball game with A. and M. there were more than a hundred visitors from this and other States who are here to attend the exercises, and this number will be greatly increased by those who will arrive to-morrow. A special train will be run from Raleigh, which will bring more than a hundred girls, who are attending school in that city, besides a number of the members of the Legislature and others. From a social standpoint it is certain that the anniversary period will eclipse anything ever held before. Until last year there was but day of the celebration, but this year basketball games were arranged for Thursday and Saturday night, and these are directly a part of the celebration, they now form no small part in the social side of the occasion. Herefore the visitors who came to attend the exercises arrived Friday, but every train to-day brought many visitors from all over the State, all of whom will remain in the city for the basketball game with the University of North Carolina Saturday night.

BODY ENTOMBED BENEATH ALTAR

Archbishop Laid in Crypt in Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul.

SERVICES ARE IMPOSING

Practically All Prominent Catholic Figures in United States Present.

Philadelphia, Pa., February 16.—The body of the late Archbishop Patrick John Ryan was to-day entombed in the crypt beneath the high altar of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul in this city, following funeral services that were imposing and in keeping with the dignity of the high office held by the departed metropolitan.

It was one of the greatest funerals ever held in Philadelphia. Practically all the prominent figures in the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States participated in the elaborate service, and hundreds of priests from all parts of the East were also present. The cathedral was filled with a crowd of 3,500 persons, and surrounding the building on the outside was a great concourse of people who witnessed the solemn procession from the church around Logan Square and back to the edifice.

Crush Is Great.—The weather was cloudy and raw. It is estimated that about 75,000 persons passed through the cathedral in four lines yesterday and until after 1 o'clock this morning to view the body. Shortly before the great doors of the church were closed the crush became so great that near a score of women fainted and had to be removed to a hospital. Several became hysterical, but after treatment they went to their homes.

The doors of the cathedral were again opened at 5 o'clock this morning to permit a long line of people to take a last look at the dead prelate, and were closed again shortly before the funeral services began.

With the exception of the heavy black draperies and a few large palms, there was an entire absence of decorations in the cathedral. There were no flowers. The body of the archbishop rested upon a catafalque on a high altar, surrounded by lights and the motionless guards of honor. It was dressed in the full, rich vestments of the office of archbishop, including the mitre. The service began with the chanting of the divine office, made up of excerpts from the Scriptures. The antiphonarians who performed the office included Cardinal Gibbons, clad in the scarlet of the sacred college, and

WOMAN SUFFERS TERRIBLE PAIN

Letter From Bigstone Gap, Va., Describing Experience of Mrs. Lawson in That City

Bigstone Gap, Va.—"I suffered for four years," writes Mrs. Elizabeth Lawson, of this place, "with terrible pains in the small of my back and in my left side. I tried three doctors, but the medicine I took from them did me no good."

At last I was advised by a friend to take Cardui, and I took one bottle. It did me so much good that I got a second bottle, and can say that Cardui did me more good than all the doctors.

I feel like a new woman now, and am well and rid of all my troubles. I would like to tell every suffering woman about my experience with Cardui, for it certainly has cured me."

If you are weak and ailing, think what it would mean to recover as rapidly and surely as did Mrs. Lawson.

For more than 50 years this strengthening remedy, Cardui, has been used by thousands of ladies, who found it of untold value in relieving womanly pains and ailments.

No medicine without merit could remain in such constant, daily use, and remain so popular as Cardui.

Cardui has brought health and happiness to thousands of women. Try it yourself.

Procession Is Formed.—With the end of the service the officiating clergymen retired to the sacristy, where the procession for the pontifical mass of requiem was formed. First came the cathedral altar boys, then the seminarians from the Overbrook Seminary, who chanted for the mass; then the bishops, priests and archbishops. Last came the officers of the mass, including Cardinal Gibbons, who presided, and Bishop Prendergast, who read the archdiocese, who was the celebrant. With them walked Monsignor Falconio, the papal delegate to the United States, representing the Pope, and Archbishop Glennon, of St. Louis, who preached the funeral sermon. There were thrones for the papal delegate, the cardinal and archbishops. The throne of the dead archbishop remained vacant.

When all the dignitaries, dressed in full pontificals, had reached their places, the scene was beautiful, as well as solemn. The mellow lights of the candles, the rich vestments of the high churchmen and the more subdued radiance of the other clergy made a picture of splendor probably never before seen at a funeral in this city. Bishop Prendergast was assisted in pontificating by Monsignor Turner, vice-chancellor of the archdiocese.

During the offertory of the mass there was singing by the priests of the archdiocese, famous for their voices. Following the reading of the gospel at 11 o'clock, Archbishop Glennon ascended the pulpit and delivered the funeral sermon. It was an eloquent tribute to Archbishop Ryan as priest and man, and brought tears to the eyes of many in the assemblage. Following the mass, John McCormick, the operatic tenor, sang a beautiful song, and the body was quincunx and was pronounced by five of the attending prelates, one of them being the cardinal.

100,000 People See Procession.—With this final rite of the church concluded the body was conveyed down the main aisle to the front door, where it was placed on a funeral carriage. Then, with the features of the beloved metropolitan exposed to view, a procession was formed which moved around the four sides of Logan Square, which is opposite the cathedral, and comprises four large city blocks. Directly behind the carriage came the seminarians, and following these in the order named came the diocesan clergy, the various religious bodies of the diocese, the blissing clergy, the monsignori, the bishops, the archbishops and finally, the cardinal and the apostolic delegate.

It is estimated that nearly 100,000 persons saw the unusual and solemn procession as it wound its way slowly around the square. Seven hundred and fifty policemen kept perfect order. With the return of the archbishop to the cathedral the body was placed in the altar, where the final scene took place. The beautiful couch casket containing the body was sealed in a leaden case before it was entombed, and while this solemn ceremony was being performed the "Benedictus" was chanted by the seminarians in unison with the clergy.

FARMERS URGED TO RAISE HAY.—T. O. Sandy and Others Advocate Diversified Farming in Virginia. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]—Nathalie, Va., February 16.—The main school of agriculture held here by the Virginia Polytechnic Institute attracted a large crowd on this, the second day of the meeting.

The main subject for discussion at yesterday's session was "Improving the Grass Crop," with Professor T. B. Hutcheson, of Blacksburg, as the speaker. Sandy, of the United States Department of Agriculture, as the principal speakers. It developed that the Norfolk and Western Railway alone shipped into Halifax county last year 1,500 tons of hay. All the speakers urged that Virginia farmers pay more attention to such crops as hay and corn rather than devote all of their time to tobacco.

Other interesting features of the meeting were the planting of shade trees on the school grounds, and talks to the women by J. H. Binford, of Richmond, and Mrs. Elizabeth Thaxton Gilbert, of South Boston. The meeting will close Friday with a big gathering of the citizens of the county.

ABINGDON MINISTER MAY ACCEPT CALL TO MEMPHIS [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]—Bristol, Va., February 16.—It now seems almost certain that the Rev. William Crowe, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Abingdon, and recognized as one of the most eloquent and charming ministers in Southwest Virginia, will go to Memphis, Tenn., to signify his purpose to leave Abingdon, in response to a call to Idlewild Presbyterian Church, in Memphis. The congregation at Abingdon will hold a meeting next Sunday, at which time the question of releasing him will come up for consideration.
